

Mission and Vision

The mission of the Africa National Chamber of Commerce is: to establish a venue for global business, trade and commerce between U.S. businesses and the continent of Africa; to serve as the regulatory agency for African Chambers of Commerce throughout the United States; to ensure that business practices adhere to the cultural sensitivities of both the North American and African continents; to create a continental structure that will facilitate the coming together of neighboring countries for the purpose of social and cultural pride, which includes economic and spiritual growth, by initiating a program of global development.

About Us

The Africa National Chamber of Commerce (ANCOC) is an outgrowth of a major conference on doing business in Africa that took place in Charlotte in April 2012.

“Doing Business in Fast-Growing Africa: A Focus on Regional Markets and Economic Hubs” included panel discussions on franchising, banking, entrepreneurship, agriculture and consumer markets. The Africana Studies Department at the University of North Carolina—Charlotte hosted the event in partnership with Ecobank, The Pan African Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PACCI), The Global Business Roundtable and Afribiz.

The ANCOC comprises conference attendees who'd expressed interest in forming a chamber of commerce that would bring together people of a variety of cultures and backgrounds interested in doing business in and with the African continent.
